

Translate.ru - Leading Online Machine Translation Providers in Russia - Announces Partnership with One Hour Translation

One Hour Translation notes 80% Spike in Russian Translations

NICOSIA, Cyprus, April 3, 2012 /PRNewswire/ -- One Hour Translation today announced their exclusive partnership with Translate.ru, the leading machine translation service provider in Russia to offer expert, human translations for their customers. The partnership was a result of a global trend of increasing demand to translate to and from Russian.

The partnership pairs two leaders in the translation world. One Hour Translation is the fastest professional human translation service provider online with a community of more than 10,000 translators including experts in fields that are gaining traction in Russia including security, software and renewable energy and IT. Translate.ru is the largest machine translation service provider in Russia where users can now translate text instantly from Russian to seven other languages free of charge. Now, together with One Hour Translation, the company also offers quick professional translation at a reasonable price for more than 50 languages.

"The PROMT company, the leader in machine translation solutions in the Russian market, is glad to establish partnership with a large provider of human translation service, One Hour Translation," said Alexey Lyapunov, Head of International Sales Department at The PROMT Company. "Our companies work to achieve the same goal – to provide people from different countries with solutions that help them to understand each other. Translate.Ru, our online service, became a basic platform for the One Hour Translation service that provides immediate free of charge translation to the main European languages."

One Hour Translation claims that the most popular languages being translated to and from Russian are English, French, Spanish, German, Italian, Japanese and Chinese. As conditions in the Russian economy improve, the company anticipates the trend to translate into Russian to continue its dramatic growth.

"Over the last three years One Hour Translation has seen a phenomenal increase of 82 percent in Russian translations that require expert translators," said Ofer Shoshan, CEO of One Hour Translation. "Most of these customers are enterprises that need translations of RFPs, RFIs and legal agreements. When a global enterprise needs to do business with a Russian company, all those documents must be translated urgently back and forth."
